

PUBLIC LENDING
RIGHT COMMISSION
COMMISSION DU
DROIT DE PRÊT PUBLIC

The Public Lending Right Commission celebrates Canadian authors' contribution to our culture

Public libraries open doors to reading and culture to all, and authors play a pivotal role. Public lending right gives authors fair compensation for allowing public access to their works.

25 years of the Public Lending Right Commission
– for all of us: authors and readers.

News

The League of Canadian Poets - inspired to celebrate

The right to celebrate

The League of Canadian Poets (LCP) is celebrating the Public Lending Right Commission's (PLRC) 25th anniversary by inviting some 100 poets to read their works in public libraries across Canada. Thousands of people will attend the readings and performances: join them throughout April during LCP's National Poetry Month.

If you can't find an event near you, visit the PLRC website to hear podcasts of some of the readings.

When poetry rhymes with public lending right, everyone benefits!

On April 23, join la Journée mondiale du livre et du droit d'auteur (JMLDA) of Quebec as it celebrates World Book and Copyright Day, and marks the PLRC's 25th anniversary.

On April 14, JMLDA will announce its program and give the public a taste of its activities by holding a forum on copyright at the Salon international du livre de Québec. Author and vice-chair of the PLRC, Aline Apostolska, has been invited by JMLDA to participate in the forum.

350 Albert St, P.O. Box 1047 / Ottawa, Ontario K1P 5V8 / Telephone: 1-800-521-5721 or 613-566-4378 / Send us an email

Canada Council for the Arts

Conseil des Arts
du Canada